LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Not a Self-Seeking Man.

Mr. Editor: In The Bulletin of Feb ruary 20 under the heading of "Various Matters" I note the following item concerning my father:

"Giles Potter of New Haven, a native of Lisbon, who retired last year after eighty-eight years' service as agent of the state board of education, has applied for a $1.000 pension."

I was aware that a resolution had been introduced in the legislature to pay my father $1,000 a year for the remainder of his life, but knowing his natural modesty and his aversion to anything that mavors of self-seeking, I was surprised to read that he had "applied for a pension." In reply to my question as to the correctness of the above item he informs me that he has not made such an application. Some of his friends in New Haven secured the introduction of the resolution in view of his long and faithful service in the employment of the state, and many in other parts of the state who know the value of his work are earnestly advocating the passage of the resolution as a well deserved testimonial for the unique service he has rendered. These friends feel that they are asking for something different from a mere pension, and if their request is granted it will establish no precedent for other pensions. It is not likely that there will be another instance of an official who having served the legislative committee member of the legislative committee

A Few Inquiries from Valletts.

Mr. Editor: Owing to the bumper crop last year, the farmers lost $470.-000,000. That is but a small part of the total loss. The producers of the country, including the farmers. lost many times that. The wealth producers of all kinds lost three-fifths of all they produced. Hew do I know? Government statistics inform as that labor retama for its own use only two-fifths of what it produces. The three-fifths that they lost somebody else gained. In other words, for every dollar the producer gets for his product he must produce what selk to the consumer for $2.50. The producer does not cansume all of his own product, and cannot, for he must consume some of the producer could get the amount (approximately) the other consumer pays for it, he would be able to buy more of the other producers. If the producer could get the amount (approximately) the other consumer pays for it, he would be able to buy more of the other producers by words of living. There would be no such complaint; only from those who will not produce. But why should those who do produce it all be compelled to give up three-fifths of what they produce to feed and clothe those who do produce it all be compelled to give up three-fifths of what they produce to feed and clothe those who do produce such condition, thow much longer can it go on? The farmers are urged to produce more. Lots of people are trying to teach them for what they do produce? That would seem to be of vastly more importance than telling them how to get more for what they do produce? That would seem to be of vastly more importance in the larger crop is produced are obliged to sell it for less. Such large crops and emall prices used to be called overproduction. Not much said about that now, aspecially in the face of the high cost of living. Something wrong and will remain so, or grow words and will remain so, or grow words. In the produce some of their time to finding the themselves and for the said and the first time to finding the produce and for themselves w

Sumers pay one dellar for. It is the only way the high cost of living can be satisfactorily seitled. The producers have got to know and under than consumers can afford to pay, more than they can pay. It needs no college education for a person to know that he cannot buy his product with the money he receives for creating it, that amount being only two-fifthe of the price of the product. Of course this will go on just so long as the farmers and all other producers allow someone size to do their thinking for them. Is there a way out? Certainly, for there was a way in. Change the machinery, the method, the system. To do this, the producers must know he cause. If the government estatistics be true, then a change of the system would, mean that every farmer who now gets 4108 for his product would get $250 for the same time and labor, and the consumer would, pay no more than now. So the consumer of the farm product which the farmer received file would yet yet on the same time and labor. The $100 is just two-nifths of $655. Isn't this guestion important enough to devote a little thought to it? Reader, it applies to you. Think over the difference between the two systems.
